morning and the first part of the afternoon.

In the morning Armour played carelessly and allowed himself to slip on started off well. He took advantage of every slip that Armour made and rounded the turn 4 up. Then Armour settled down and won the eleventh.

Dempsey was nevous here and missed a short putt. On the next he drove into a trap, overran the green twice and picked up, with his lead cut down to two.

Dempsey was thought to have very

to two.

Dempsey was thought to have very little chance. On the next, however, Armour lost his ball on a long second near the green, and Dempsey, who had also been in serious trouble, won the hole. The Georgian lost the next, pickling up his ball, but the delay had given him a chance to recover his game. Armour missed another short putt on the fifteenth, which gave his opponent the hole dormits three. The Scot was unable to get better than a half on the fiest and last.
